UNCLE SAM'S CREDIT
WHAT, NO BEER?
THIS OLD, OLD EARTH
YOUR 250 BILLION UNITS

—By Arthur Brisbane—
(Copyright, 1932 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE BIG RICH city of New York is thinking earnestly about money and where to get it. Bankers, forced to be severe, because they lend other people's money when they buy city bonds, tell New York, "until you reform you can't have any more money."

New York has one single piece of property, Central park, worth as much as everything she owes put together. Her bonds have back of them every bank building in New York, every other building, every dock, skyscraper, hotel, but her credit, for the moment, is feeble.

HOWEVER, New York's public officials are not all discouraged. Mr. Berry, the controller, who knows more about its finances than anybody else, yesterday told the writer: "Buy New York bonds now, there is no better security, you will make money."

UNCLE SAM has no such trouble with his credit. His budget is out of gear, refusing to balance, he owes $20,000,000,000, but his credit is so good that it would frighten him. If anything could frighten him, recently, from two or three big banks in New York, he borrowed $100,000,000,000 on a 90-day loan, and what interest do you think he paid for that money? One-eighth of 1 per cent. That is enough to make the harassed governments of Europe go into a huddle, and never come out.

P. SCOTT McBRIDE, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, says: "Wets who glibly anticipate that they may shortly be able to put their feet on the brass rail and blow the foam off a mug of beer are likely to be disappointed."

Beer is not usually sold in mugs but in large glasses, otherwise Mr. McBRIDE's statement is probably sound. There are, as he points out, 36 states with prohibition laws that would prevent the sale of beer even if the national government should legalize it. Beer, if it returns, will come back slowly, no matter how the section goes.

It is true that beer is here, and whisky, too, and gin, and plenty of all three, but of poisonous quality and high price.

PROFESSOR EINSTEIN says the earth is older than scientists have supposed. Instead of being only 3,652,000 years old, it is 10,000,000,000 years old. Ten thousand million years seems very old but there is nothing unreasonable about it, although there is a big gap between 10,000,000,000 and the 6,000 years mentioned in the Bible.

Nature rejoices in big figures. "Outer spiral nebulae," in any one of which our earth, our sun and all the planets would be like a drop of water in the ocean, are moving away from us at the speed of 12,500 miles per second. Try to realize that speed. That is part of the expansion of the universe which began 10,000,000,000 years ago. The earth was born about then.

YOU need not be overwhelmed by cosmic figures. For you also are built on a cosmic scale of grandeur. For instance, you have in your blood vessels red blood cells to the number of 250 billions, which means two

MARSILIA WINS AUDITION TEST

Will Compete in Ohio Finals Sunday, to be Sung Over WTAM

Joe Marsilia of Salem, whose lyric voice has attracted widespread attention, won the district Atwater Kent audition for men at Canton Monday night.

This entitles him to enter the state finals to be sung over WTAM in Cleveland at 1 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 30.

In Canton Marsilia sang "Veddi la Grubba" from "Pagliacci." He was accompanied by E. L. Allen of Alliance.

Ten young men and nine young women were entered in the Canton audition. Miss Josephine Boyer of Canton won the young women's contest.

Approximately 22 contestants will sing in the state competition. Radio listeners and a jury of musical experts will join in selecting the state champions—one young woman and one young man. They will receive silver medals and qualify for the district audition to be held at Chicago in November, when they will compete with winners of other mid-west states for a share of the $15,000 in cash awards.

From Oct. 1, 1933 until April 1, 1934, the present wage scale will again be used. It provides $3.50 for day wages, 40 cents a ton for loading, and eight cents for cutting.

William E. Hahn, 72, Taken to City Hospital; Condition Critical

William E. Hahn, 72, of 404 Madison ave., is in the City hospital today in a critical condition suffering from what police say is a self-inflicted bullet wound in his abdomen.

He was found in an unconscious condition, lying near a chair, by neighbors, shortly before 5 p. m. Patrolman Ralph Steffer was notified immediately.

With the time, 4:30, heading the mind, Hahn wrote "Am losing my mind; can't get well. May God forgive me. W. E. Hahn. P. S. May God forgive me. Goodbye, W. E. H." At the bottom of the paper a second note, marked 4:40 p. m. was found.

"Will wait awhile," it said. "Paper coming. Winchester, round barrel, 32-20. W. E. H." "P. S. I can't wait. Goodbye, W. E. Hahn."

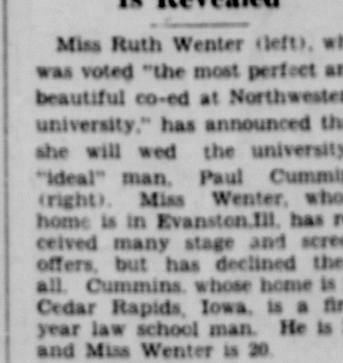

Hahn is reported by police to have been in continued ill health and is believed to have been dependent. Hospital attaches say he has little chance to recover.

President Plans Detroit Address; Foe Leaves N. Y.

Governor Heads West Today On 3,000-Mile Trip; Will Pass Through Youngstown At 6:45 A. M. Tomorrow

By The Associated Press

A considerable part of the national whirl of politics again is moving toward Ohio. Both President Hoover and his Democratic rival, Franklin D. Roosevelt, expect to enter the Buckeye state this week. Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills also plans an Ohio trip, while former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker of Cleveland has been called upon for a Democratic radio broadcast.

Gov. Roosevelt's Ohio visit, however, will be entirely a before-breakfast affair. He will pass through Youngstown, by train, at 6:45 a. m. tomorrow, and on Thursday will go through Zanesville at 4:25 a. m., Newark at 5:25 a. m., and Columbus at 6:30 a. m.

President Hoover probably will make brief daylight stops, Saturday, in Portsmouth, Columbus, Delaware, Mass., Upper Sandusky and Toledo. The exact route of his trip from Washington to Detroit may not be definitely determined until shortly before his departure, but it was expected by his friends that he would travel on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad.

Hoover Framing Detroit Talk

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—President Hoover is framing his Detroit campaign speech, considering the while just where to make rear platform appearances on his third mid-western trip next week-end.

His decision to speak Saturday night in the Michigan center of the automotive industry was announced at the White House a day after the President's return from Cleveland where he discussed employment and the wage earner. The subject of the Detroit address was not disclosed, however.

Nor was any definite decision on other pre-election plans of the Republican nominee made public. He will return to the White House immediately after his Detroit address. Then Republican leaders here look for a swing along the Atlantic seaboard topped by a New York or New Jersey speech.

Next in order is the possibility of a journey to California. Mr. Hoover still is considering requests that he travel to his Palo Alto home just before election day. Only yesterday, Secretary Mills returned from a trans-continental political trip to say that Californians "want" Mr. Hoover to come there.

The treasury chief brought to the chief executive forecasts of victory at the polls. He said he told the President there was a "swing" toward him that would mean his reelection.

President Hoover will leave Friday evening for Detroit. In order to reach new audiences, it is expected the presidential train will take a different route than those followed toward Des Moines and Cleveland.

Meanwhile, a message advocating the re-election of Mr. Hoover went out from Detroit to all Ford Motor company employees. The company submitted for the consideration of its men a belief that "any break in his program would hurt industry."

The last of his three major speeches of the trip will be at Baltimore. The other two were set for Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

Virtually all of those who made the long swing with him last month will accompany the candidate on this trip.

Mrs. Roosevelt will join the party at Pittsburgh and remain on the train until it reaches Atlanta.

Hold Final Rites For Legion Chief

(By Associated Press)
PITTSBURGH, O., Oct. 18.—An impressive military funeral was provided here today for Col. Ralph Cole, commander of the Ohio department of the American Legion, and former member of congress.

All business in Findlay was suspended and parking prohibited in the downtown area during the services.

Among those paying homage to the colonel were hundreds of veterans of the 37th Division in which he served during the World war. A battalion of U. S. infantry and the Army band of Fort Hayes, Columbus, were assigned as escort to the cortege.

The honor guard and firing squad at the grave in Maple Grove cemetery were furnished by the Clarence Hyde post of Warren, O., where Col. Cole died Saturday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Judges' Tribunal Gets Maschke Case

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—The case of Maurice Maschke, veteran Republican leader, and four others charged with looting the county treasury, was given to a tribunal of three judges for a decision today.

Final arguments were finished when Prosecutor P. L. A. Leighley closed for the state with a brief summary of the evidence. The judges—John P. Dempsey, Homer T. Powell and Virgil J. Terrell—were expected to announce a decision in a day or two.

COLONIAL ADMINISTRATORS

The United States has at least 531 colonial administrators, and every one of them is a potential member of a congressional fact-finding committee at some future time. The Philippine islands, being farther away from American shores, naturally need the most attention.

During the long session of the 72nd congress the house approved a Philippine independence bill by a vote of 346 to 47. It failed to reach a vote in the senate, that body substituting another bill for it and allowing the matter to drag along as unfinished business until the reconvening of congress in December.

What was more to be expected, then that the author of the house bill, a South Carolina Democrat named Butler B. Hare, should be off to the Philippines to ascertain the real facts of the situation? Had not others followed the same procedure, jumping first and looking afterward?

From an article of special correspondence to the New York Times from Manila it may be deduced that Representative Hare will find the sweet of his Philippine welcome slightly soured with misgivings as to his intentions. As the author of an independence bill he should be a hero. But some Filipinos are getting fussy about their heroes.

They remember Senator Hawes, author of the substitute bill in the senate. Last year when he came to the islands he was hailed as "the friend of Americans." "The Great Crusader," "the best friend of the Philippines." But then the senator sailed away. He decided to change the "preparation" period in his independence bill from five to 13 years. The Poor Butcherly admires he left behind him couldn't stomach that, and now he is known as "the best friend of the American rope manufacturer."

There were Senator Robinson and Secretary of War Hurley. Filipinos did their best to treat them right, too, but hospitality failed to bear fruit. Those who believe in independence are quite sure they have been betrayed. Those who have intelligence enough to comprehend the unworthy motives that lie back of independence talk in congress are sickened with disgust.

It is into this kind of an atmosphere that Representative Hare, making quite a bid for fame in his own individual style, is throwing himself. Adjustment of relationships between the United States and the Philippine islands is a vital problem, calling for the steadiest intelligence of the nation. Night gander that under this nation's present system of colonial administration the problem has been smothered into a complete mess. Perhaps the way out is to postpone action until each member of congress has had a chance to make the trip and find the facts.

FOOTBALL'S FIRE-EATERS

Ask almost any man who speaks of himself as a football fan what he thinks of the new rules and the answer will be, "They slow up the game. I liked it all right the way it was before." It is an answer that you would be better had it not been used by so many preceding generations of football watchers, coaches and players. If the game actually had slowed up and sacrificed interest every time a vocal majority has predicted those consequences, it would be no more exciting than a turtle race by this time.

Most important of the changes this year is the rule declaring the ball "dead" as soon as any part of the carrier, other than his hands or feet, touches the ground. This alteration, placing a penalty on the twisting, turning type of backfield man who frequently resorted to a halfdown and half-up posture to evade tacklers, is the one that is supposed to be killing football in the season of 1932.

It aims to protect the runner against piling-up after he is down. In return for that protection the ball-carrier automatically is prevented from threatening further progress after he has reached a position where piling-up used to be the normal order of action. Many a back bruised by gouging knee, many an ankle wrenched by the twisting progress of several pounds of hurtling linemen testify to the possibilities of injury offered by the mound that formerly was the defense's assurance that the man with the ball would stay down—permanently, as the hope sometimes was.

Football will be a rough game as long as it consists chiefly of physical contact among 22 exercise-toughened young men. No single rule covering an incidental aspect of the game such as piling-up is going to make it a hobby for ladies. The fire-eaters who conscientiously oppose each and every attempt to make the game a shade more humane and reasonable would do well to be thankful that they played when it still was a game for men willing to die—and let it go at that.

If rules are hurting the game, the injuries must have been concealed very cleverly.

What Others Say

THE SOCIALIST VOTE

How large will the Socialist vote be on November 8? In 1928 it amounted to less than one per cent of the total vote. The current returns in the Literary Digest's poll, accounting for nearly 8,000,000 ballots from 20 states, show Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, getting 6.65 per cent of the total vote. It is dangerously close to two and a half million votes, which would make him a serious contender for the White House.

It is said fear built the first city, inspired by the instinct to herd behind protecting walls. London somehow illustrates some vague terror. Millions pour into it daily to snatch material profits that will permit them to live away from it. Or so it appears.

The first question for every visitor: "Have you seen Noel Coward's 'Caligula'?" We attended a matinee, the drama of England, its defeats and triumphs in stirring pagentry. There are moments of poignancy when the eyes swim, yet I found myself murmuring: "What a bore!" The play got away to a flying start when the King and Queen attended the opening. Because of a belief it concealed a wobbling loyalty, it is likely Coward will be knighted.

The night club rages of the past summer where Charlie Farrell and Chick Enzer, American entertainers, in white-tied, gardenia-clad elegance they dived the same dicky-dick-doo deliriums, climaxed with the same ribald snappers, we used to hear at Charlie Farrell's Montmartre and the Helen Morgan Club.

Study in contentment: She was little, old and threadbare like the trembly handful of frayed flowers held out for sale near Drury Lane.

"Well, sister, how does it go?" "I can't complain, sir. I go on breathing."

After listening to local garrulousness of "rawhatch," "I darsay" and "Iawncy," one feels like Joseph Herseyheimer, who after a few days in England, awakened for breakfast and asked the waiter to bring him "a spot of egg, a touch of kippers and a dash of potato."

The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, have become steadfast pals. One goes nowhere without the other, often dressing almost alike, and the press speaks of them as "the Royal brothers." So enormous is their appeal that wherever they go dining or dancing, news spreads magically and the particular place is soon overflowing. Wales, the reports go, is taking on weight and is carrying out rigid diet and exercises. He eats no breakfast and has limited himself to one mild after-dinner highball. He loves beer. And burns up cigarettes furiously.

In a country where beer, wines and whiskey are so accessible, popularity of the tea shop is a minor wonder. Each afternoon for everybody from salesdame to aristocrat ends with tea. There is every variety of shop from those serving halfpenny muffins, on pine tops, to cakes tasting of Benedictine, on spindly tables inlaid with jade. In latter places, tea talk is always a polite hum, never barred with a rollicking laugh, and a chat for two has an odd habit of totaling 15 shillings.

Late this afternoon, incidentally, we motored to a Surrey country club for tea. Our windows overlooked an 18-hole putting course where tweedy Britons disported with solemnity. My ambition was to wait until one ruddy golfer with mutton-chop whiskers attempted a two-foot putt and missed. So I could stick my head out of the window and scream, "Lousy!" But we had to leave.

NEW YORK
Day by Day
O.O. McIntyre

LONDON, Oct. 15.—There's sharp realization that pronounced class distinction of the narrow minded England of pre-war days is on its way out. Nothing specific for such calculations. It's just in the air. Somehow you sense an increased insolence in the "very good, sir" of lift and cabmen.

Specialists wield power. Labour is in the cabinet and hide-bound Tories crouch glumly from club windows. Yet without to other city has so retained the traditional pride. I went forth before breakfast, threading the noisy Strand to Trafalgar and loitered near the Nelson monument.

London was going to work—plodding, not rushing. It displays no enthusiasm for daily routine and the mechanics of existence. Factories and offices are so much stuff. The Englishman is a born putterer, a rider of hobbies. He regards the city with hasty impudence as enslaving.

His call is for the village and its meadows, the woods, the lanes and their flowers. He finds elation in digging among his gardens, raising cogs, cats, horses or lingering along the countryside listening to the chirp of crickets. One has the everlasting impression of excellent breeding.

It is said fear built the first city, inspired by the instinct to herd behind protecting walls. London somehow illustrates some vague terror. Millions pour into it daily to snatch material profits that will permit them to live away from it. Or so it appears.

The first question for every visitor: "Have you seen Noel Coward's 'Caligula'?" We attended a matinee, the drama of England, its defeats and triumphs in stirring pagentry. There are moments of poignancy when the eyes swim, yet I found myself murmuring: "What a bore!" The play got away to a flying start when the King and Queen attended the opening. Because of a belief it concealed a wobbling loyalty, it is likely Coward will be knighted.

The night club rages of the past summer where Charlie Farrell and Chick Enzer, American entertainers, in white-tied, gardenia-clad elegance they dived the same dicky-dick-doo deliriums, climaxed with the same ribald snappers, we used to hear at Charlie Farrell's Montmartre and the Helen Morgan Club.

Study in contentment: She was little, old and threadbare like the trembly handful of frayed flowers held out for sale near Drury Lane.

"Well, sister, how does it go?" "I can't complain, sir. I go on breathing."

After listening to local garrulousness of "rawhatch," "I darsay" and "Iawncy," one feels like Joseph Herseyheimer, who after a few days in England, awakened for breakfast and asked the waiter to bring him "a spot of egg, a touch of kippers and a dash of potato."

The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, have become steadfast pals. One goes nowhere without the other, often dressing almost alike, and the press speaks of them as "the Royal brothers." Twenty Years Ago

(Issue of Oct. 18, 1912)

Contractor McCullum has finished the construction of the last 75 concrete poles of the 1,175 for the city's new lighting system.

Miss Pauline Warren, Leetonia, was chosen president of the senior class of Mt. Union-Solo college, Alliance, Clifton L. Atkinson, Damascus, was named vice president. Miss Ella Dewey, Cambridge, formerly of Salem, will act as historian for the class of 33 members, said to be the largest in the school.

A fine new store and residence building is being constructed by William Buckinger on the corner of Broadway and Race sts.

John L. Clarke, Cleveland, former Lisbon resident, now connected with the Nickel Plate Railroad company, as counsel, will speak in Salem before the election, coming here under the auspices of the Democratic party.

The new sprinkling system being installed at the plant of the W. H. Mullins company is rapidly nearing completion.

Thursday morning workmen from the Buckeye Engine company were busy installing a new double compound engine at the plant of the Salem Electric Light & Power company, Depot st.

Work on the addition to the plan of the National Sanitary Manufacturing company is being rushed. About half of the addition is already under roof. Scarcity of labor has held the work back somewhat.

Mrs. R. D. Stiles and children, and Mrs. W. H. Walker, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Evans, east of the city, will leave Thursday morning for their homes in Lone Willow, Okla.

The astrological forecast for this day is a rather contradictory one. There are signs of great activity and possible commotion and stirring about, with testimonies of intrigue and surprising developments in the affairs. But with these promises of enterprise and initiative a testimony of financial period is noted.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of conflicting conditions, with much enterprise and initiative but attended by financial hazard or extravagance, unless wisdom and conservation be employed. There is sign of change, possible litigation and loss through legal papers or writings. Private affiliations may prove interesting. A child born on this day should be enterprising, original and adaptable but may lean to extravagance.

Devisably intrigue.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

New York City

Pernicious Anemia

Pernicious anemia was at one time a dreaded and fatal disease. Within recent years discovery of the curative value of liver has changed the prospect, for the use of liver and other important foods has helped to make possible the cure of pernicious anemia.

This is a disease of the blood, but its real cause has never been discovered. In this disorder there is a destruction of the red cells of the blood, and the blood becomes thin and watery. Not only is there a reduction in the number of red blood cells, but a loss of coloring matter as well.

The patients are pale in appearance, listless, and have no desire or ability to work. Though they may be extremely weak, there is no marked loss of weight. Swelling of the feet and shortness of breath upon slight exertion are common signs. Faintness and dizziness occur as the disease progresses.

As a rule, there are digestive disturbances which are frequently overlooked. Such symptoms as indigestion, "biliousness" and severe diarrhea are often definite signs of the trouble.

Pernicious anemia is misleading because it runs in cycles. The afflicted person improves greatly and for a short time may be decidedly better in health. This favorable state of health may last for several months, only to be followed by a relapse. As time goes on the periods of partial recovery become less frequent and of shorter duration.

The diagnosis of the disease is easily made by what is called the "blood count." In this test, the actual destruction of the red blood cells and the decrease in the coloring matter can be determined. The condition may be confused with a more simple form of anemia. It is only by means of this test that the presence of pernicious anemia can be accurately determined.

For many years diet was believed to be the only means of curing pernicious anemia, and the diet was planned to increase meats and other proteins. Vegetables and milk were recommended, also strict control of the foods and complete rest in bed, but with little success in combating this disorder.

Since the discovery that liver is of extreme value in the treatment of pernicious anemia, great strides have been made in its mastery. Liver has been found to multiply red blood cells four or five times, and in addition the general health of the individual has been decidedly improved within a period of from one to three months.

The Use of Liver
Fresh liver is often difficult to obtain. For it may be substituted certain recommended liver extracts. One of these is in the form of a powder that may be sprinkled over the food. Research is now being carried on in an effort to make a highly concentrated liver extract which can be injected into the tissues. When perfected, this method will be economical, easy to administer and more rapid in its action.

Never make your own diagnosis of anemia and certainly do not attempt to prescribe for yourself. Merely because you are pale and tire easily does not mean you are anemic. The diagnosis and treatment of this disease are highly technical and should only be undertaken by your physician, who is trained for this work.

By FRANCIS WALLACE

A GREAT FOOTBALL ROMANCE

COPYRIGHT 1930, BY FRANCIS WALLACE — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Ted Wynne leaves his position in the steel mill at Bellport to work his way through college. He loves Barb Roth, daughter of wealth, and realizes he could never ask her to marry a mill hand. At Old Dominion, Ted shows promise as a football player. Tom Stone, star player, and one of Bellport's elite, is antagonistic towards him. When Ted is forced to give up football because it conflicts with his job, Barney Mack, the coach, gets him a position that will not interfere. Ted passes his examinations with honors and wins the respect of his classmates. He goes home for a visit. To infuriate Ted, Barb encourages Tom and attends the New Year's Eve party with him. Ted goes with Janet, Barb's friend, and during a mock wedding, Janet kisses him ardently.

CHAPTER IV

Barney Mack laid most of his groundwork for the football season during spring practice. He held lectures at noon and supplemented these by field work in the late afternoon. All freshmen were eligible for spring training because they would be varsity men the next fall; after six weeks of looking the mover Barney knew what he had to work with and made his plans during the summer.

"Get everything you can," he told Ted, "and if you come through you'll be second string quarterback next season."

Second string quarterback for Barney Mack was an important job because Barney played a heavy schedule and started his shock troops against most opponents; which meant that Ted might be called upon to direct the New Dominion offense for one quarter, at least against the regulars of Army, Navy, Nebraska and other big teams.

Ted studied; copied all the plays in his notebook as Barney passed them out; studied not only his own assignment but that of every man on each play; he went into Barney's strategy; covered the rules carefully; and when he wasn't certain of a point, he talked it over with Barney.

"He had time enough for this without interfering with his classes. New Dominion had no fraternities; athletics and student life were organized on the lines of the ten halls. There were no women students; tight discipline, particularly for freshmen, provided little opportunity for feminine diversion, either with the town girls or with the students of Weyrick, the school across the Nile Road referred to by sophisticated New Dominion men as Jaundice.

Ted was working three hours each evening in the law library and did some secretarial work for Barney Mack; these jobs gave him plenty of time for football and classes and he was so busy on the campus that he was not cramped by the restrictions. Other freshmen were not so happy.

"It's the bunk," Stone said to a crowd on the gymnasium grass one afternoon. "You'd think we were a lot of kids."

"This is a real place and you don't know it," Jimmy Pidge objected. "It's a frosh paradise if you ask me and you should because I'm an authority on schools as this is my fourth."

"Perennial freshman, eh Pidge?" Ted asked.

"Born with a silver anchor on my tail."

"What's so hot about this dump?" Stone asked.

"In the first place you've got Barney; best coach in the business; stick with Barney and you'll get an education touring the country which you'll never get listening to a lot of goofy profs; a guy has as good a chance of making all-American."

Although Pete never plays the trombone he is very accomplished on that instrument. A very bashful sort of chap with a legion of friends whom he has never seen but who have heard him over the air. You cannot help but enjoy this act.

to Leetonia youths to accomplish everything possible to make a continuation of this progress possible.

Mrs. Ila Marshall Cronin of East Liverpool will speak at a rally of Leetonia Republican women in the office of John Woodward at 2 p. m. Saturday.

Jacob Rubin of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Adah Dodd Ponce of Dayton were speakers at the Wells-ville meeting while Mayor A. R. Johnson of Miles Heights, Cleveland, and Mrs. L. K. Jones Hamlet, N. C. were speakers when East Liverpool's colored voters held a meeting.

Exonerates Administration

Rubin, author and traveler, who recently returned from a close and intimate study of Russia's "five-year plan", gave his observations on the subject, "Causes and Effects of the Depression", and, in an unbiased and non-partisan talk, completely exonerated Herbert Hoover and the Republican regime from blame in the current world-wide distress.

He based his observations on a study of the depression in several countries and lauded the work of President Hoover in preventing more serious results in the United States. Mrs. Ponce also lauded the President in her address.

Mayor Johnson and Mrs. Jones asked the backing of voters in the coming election fight appealing for the cooperation of all in upholding the country's standards of living.

Senator Lewis will speak at a G. O. P. rally in East Rochester tonight while the Homeworth Republican Men's organization will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. Daisy Herron at 2:30 p. m. today with Mrs. Ponce as the speaker.

Ingalls Here Thursday

Mrs. Ponce will continue her speaking tour of the county with an address before G. O. P. women of East Palestine Wednesday night.

One of the principal highlights of the current campaign will be the appearance, Thursday night, of David S. Ingalls, Republican nominee for governor in the High school auditorium. The meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p. m.

400,000 To Vote

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—More than 400,000 voters will be eligible to cast their ballots in Cuyahoga county next month. It was estimated by Louis Simon, clerk of the election board.

It was stated that, while much of the planned work does not have to be done immediately, it was thought it should be started as soon as possible in order to aid in relieving unemployment this winter.

THEATER Attractions

"HORSEFEATHERS," hilarious comedy with the ever funny and nonsensical Marx brothers, concludes its three-day run today at the State theater.

If it is really one long laugh that the country needs right now it can easily be obtained by viewing this film. Crazier than "Monkey Business," more "cocoanutty" than "Cocoanuts" the brothers romp and jump, literally, through the mad pace of the picture.

This time the setting is dear old Huxley college, with all four of the Marx-men determined to fight fiercely for their alma mammy against the threatening gestures of rival Darwin.

Groucho is the college president, a post he has accepted because it seems the only way in which he can get his son Zeppo out of college. Zeppo has been a freshman for twelve years. Under Groucho's tutelage he wins his diploma, his letter in football, and the girl — one at a time, of course — after some of the most hilarious sequences.

er as its stars. It will play two days.

The picture, which marks Cooper's return to the screen after several months spent hunting in Africa, is set in a port on the north coast of Africa. Miss Bankhead is cast as the wife of a submarine commander, who is insanely jealous of her. She meets Cooper and falls in love with him, to discover later that he is a member of her husband's crew.

When the husband discovers the situation, he gets the two of them aboard his vessel, heads it for a freighter, and turns the controls over to Cooper just as it crashes. The sub sinks, and while it is lying crippled on the ocean floor the two men battle with their wits for the woman.

The role of the husband is played by Charles Laughton, noted British stage star, who makes his first screen appearance in this picture.

Victim of Train

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 18.—Believed to have been struck by a train, John Carado 35, of Toledo, was found dead beside railroad tracks near here.

The year at college had done things to him; the kickoff was over — he was in the middle of the big game; and if sometimes it seemed that winning was not worth the price he knew that he could not turn back, whether that was courage or stubbornness or common sense he would find out later.

Ted was riding a day coach. His companions were of the class he was trying to escape; greasy foreigners eating oranges; sweaty Negroes with shoes off, resting their feet while they slept with open mouths; sad-faces, dumb-faces, beaten-faces.

Most of them never had a chance. Ted didn't want to grow old like that; he had his chance and he was going to give it a battle.

The train stopped for ten minutes at Columbus to change engines; a crowd of students from Ohio State trooped noisily into the car ahead. Ted got his bag and joined them. It was 1 o'clock in the morning and he would be riding until 5.

A nice thing about life—you could always change cars.

More students got on at Newark; and Zanesville; their bags were emblezzoned with pennants from Ohio Wesleyan, Muskingum, Ohio University. Girls and boys; youngsters with bright faces and laughing voices.

Groups began to strut at ukuleles and to sing; gradually they got together—a nice thing about kids; they made their own fun wherever they found themselves.

Songs... Cheers... Noise.

Somebody saw a New Dominion pennant on Ted's bag; generously they gave a cheer for New Dominion; they all knew about Barney Mack and his Blue Comets.

Ted thrilled. Big stuff. Next year he might be a part of it—these kids might know about him.

What a world!

An older man was standing in the aisle; making a speech.

"Young people," he said, "let us stop this revelry and turn our thoughts to God. Let us pray."

Ted knew about God. He had his religion from the time he had been bounced on his mother's knee; but he didn't think God wanted Y. M. C. A. guys like that to throw a wet blanket on a party just when a lot of kids were beginning to enjoy themselves.

This egg might mean all right but he was out of order. Ted left the car and walked to the platform.

A girl followed him.

"Got a cigaret?" she asked. A pretty girl; red hair tumbling over one ear; slanting eyes; a good chin, healthy color; a little something different about her dress.

"That guy burns me up," she stated. "Are you from New Dominion?"

"Yes. Where are you from?"

"Weyrick; or perhaps you call it Jaundice."

Her smile anticipated Ted's surprise.

"Where do you live, Mister?"

"Bellport."

"Well—you might call this a coincidence. I'm from just over the bridge."

"Bellville?"

"Wheleton."

"My names Ted Wynne."

"I'm Rosalie Downs, Shake Mister."

A. T. & T. and Bell Plan Improvements

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and the Bell system, it was announced today, expect to spend approximately $35,000,000 for plant betterment during the next 12 months.

A. W. Robertson, chairman of the national committee on industrial rehabilitation, was informed by Bell officials that the sum to be appropriated will be spent for essential work in maintaining an improved service.

It was stated that, while much of the planned work does not have to be done immediately, it was thought it should be started as soon as possible in order to aid in relieving unemployment this winter.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE STRIPED TIGER

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal artist, Paul Bransom... inspired by the savage ferocity of the striped tiger, known throughout the world as the terror of the jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

AT Stockholm, the American Negro play, "Green Pastures," is produced, all-Swedish cast with police protecting the actors from a crowd that protested against "religious lampooning."

Any nation not familiar with America's peculiarly varied attitude toward religion might well call that play "religious lampooning."

The Bible Comique, "the comic Bible," published in Paris years ago, frankly irreverent, was no worse than "Green Pastures," showing the ruler of the universe as a colored man in a clergyman's costume, offering the angels and archangels a "fish fry" as a celestial treat and saying to the angel Gabriel, "Watch your step, Gabe."

ALL sorts of opinions about the depression, "business improving," etc. Everybody is as cheerful as he can be.

A pleasantly frank opinion comes from Theron McCampbell of Holmdel, N. J., representing Monmouth county in the state legislature. In his opinion, "the panic has about run its course. But the depression has just begun."

That is too pessimistic, but sensible men realize that the depression must necessarily last a good deal longer and try to adapt themselves to conditions as they are. The rainbow days of 1929 will not come back soon.

LOCKER ROOM GOSSIP

SALEM HIGH teams have seldom failed to attain an average of 500 or better during a football season and, over a period of 31 years, hold as fine a gridiron record as any other Ohio school.

For years the Quakers have ranked among the leading aggregations in Northwestern Ohio and while the 1932 campaign is marked somewhat with disaster, resulting more from the unprecedented power of rival aggregations than the weakness of Salem's team, fans are looking forward with optimism to 1933.

Records of teams of 1897, 1898 and 1900 are needed to complete those we have on file here. Old-time fans having these records and who would be so kind as to let us have them, please write The News.

Here are win and loss records of past Salem High teams, beginning with 1896: (Records will be given day by day.)

Won 2, lost 2, scored 25 points, opponents 12.

1899
Won 9, lost 0; 176 points, opponents none.

1901
Won 3, lost 0, tied 1; 73 points, opponents none.

1902
Won 2, lost 2, tied 1; scored 12 points to 38 by opponents.

1903
Won 2, lost 3; scored 32 to 86.

1904
Won 1, lost 2; 25 points to 27.

1905
Won 6, lost 3; 159 points to 40.

1906
Won 6, lost 1, tied 1; 58 points to 12.

1907
Won 5, lost 5; 147 to 139 points.

How long does a college or university keep a good football coach?

Are coaches underpaid or overpaid?

BY LOOKING BACK over coaching records of Ohio colleges and universities for a period of several years, we can find the answer.

At least in Ohio, the average football coach keeps his job six or seven years. Then he either is promoted to a better coaching job, gains an athletic directorship, or leaves out altogether.

When you consider that a football coach taking his first job has the feeling that at least he may keep his job only five to 10 years, any salary he may receive doesn't seem too large. Of course the average coach believes he can get another position if he loses out, but he's not at all certain.

Herman E. Sawyer, who used to turn out fine football teams at Heidelberg, once lamented that a coach's job was more uncertain than a political job and that, few, if any, coaches were over paid.

In Ohio, there are a mere scattering of coaches whose services have been considered valuable enough to keep them longer than the average span of a coach's service.

L. C. Bolos, of Wooster, is the dean of Ohio football coaches. He has been turning out teams at the Presbyterian college for 18 years.

Joe Myers has been at Xavier for 13 years, and George Gauthier at Ohio Wesleyan for 12 years. Bill Lang is in his 10th year at Muskingum. Don Peden of Ohio university and Harry Graves of Wilberforce both have held the same position for nine years. Harry Bauman of Dayton is another veteran.

Other coaches who are beginning to round out veteran coaching terms at their respective schools are Frank Hayes, Marietta; R. J. Kuttler, Kenyon; Ralph Vince, John Carroll; W. E. Stellar, Bowling Green; Howard Blair, Akron; M. E. Wagoner, Kent State; Bill Berblough, Capital; Fred Chmuck, Ashland; R. K. Edler, Otterbein; Ray Watts, Baldwin-Wallace; L. K. Butler, Oberlin; Sam Williams, Ohio State; A. C. Burck, Bluffton, and T. W. Stobbs, Wittenberg.

The real youngsters in the head coaching posts are Harry Gertz, Mount Union; George Rich, Denison; Paul Lyne, Rio Grande; John Ault, Cedarville; Ted Turney, Heidelberg; Harris Lamb, Ohio Northern; Ray Ride, Case; Dr. Dalton Feele, Wilmington; Stuart Holcomb, Findlay; Carl D. Colmer, Defiance; Jim Nicholson, Toledo; Dana Kline, Cincinnati; Tom Keedy, Western Reserve; C. J. McFort, Hiram, and Frank Wilton, Miami.

PARIS—Walter Neusel, Germany, outpointed Larry Gains, Toronto, Ont. (10); Maurice Griselle, France stopped Raul Bianchi, Argentina (6).

WILLAMAN MAY HAVE OLIPHANT CALL SIGNALS

Star of Michigan Battle Scheduled To Take Cramer's Post

40,000 FANS SLATED TO WITNESS BATTLE

Hogan, Tormey May Be Out of Pitt Line; Both On Injured List

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Oct. 18.—"The Buckeyes are tough".

That's what Coach Jack Sutherland of the University of Pittsburgh is saying as he grooms the Panthers for Saturday's grid clash with Ohio State. In fact, he warned his charges during yesterday's workout that the Buckeyes "are about ready to break loose and go places."

Plan Hand Practices

But the Bucks don't feel so tough. They haven't suffered from last Saturday's heartbreaking defeat at the hands of Michigan, and Coach Sam Willaman plans a week of grueling practice in preparation for the journey to Pitt.

The bright spot in the O. S. U. dugout is the fact the squad emerged from the Michigan game without injury. This fact strengthens Buckeye hopes for an even chance to turn back the powerful, undefeated Pittsburgh eleven.

Except for the possibility that he might place Oliphant in Cramer's place at quarterback, Willaman indicated his lineup would be unchanged for the Pitt game. A scrimmage with a freshman team using Panther tricks was planned today.

Yesterday a steady rain kept the team indoors for a much-needed rest.

Panthers In Tough Spot

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—(Special)—The Pitt Panther is in a very tough spot for his game with Ohio State this Saturday, for he will be fresh from a thrilling victory over a stubborn Army Mule, while Ohio will be eager to lick someone after being tied by Indiana and losing to Michigan on the last two weekends. The Pitt team did not come out of the gruelling Army game in the best of condition, losing Joe Tormey for at least three weeks, and with the possibility that Bob Hogan may be out of Saturday's game.

Ohio may not be any more fit physically, but the Buckeyes will have the advantage of being out for their first major victory of the season, and for that reason, if for no other reason will be hard to stop.

There are other reasons, however, for giving the Buckeyes a slight edge. Four of them are embodied in the Scarlet and Grey backfield made up of Carl Cramer, All-Conference quarterback; Captain Lawrence Hinchman, Joe Carroll, hard-driving, and Mike speedy ball-carrier, and Mike Culp, hard-blocking fullback. Culp, star of the Michigan game last week, may replace Cramer.

Pitt Depends On Heller

As the season goes on, more and more is the dependence of the Panthers upon left halfback Warren Heller noticeable. The rangy Steeltion had been the spearhead of the Pitt attack all year. He throws passes for touchdowns, carries the ball himself, and on occasion quick kicks.

He has been a marked man in every contest, and has received a squad bodybeating in every game, but at the close of each contest he is going as hard as at the start.

The duel between he and Cramer will be well-worth the attention of estimated 40,000 crowd expected at Saturday's game.

Plans are being rushed forward for the entertainment of Ohio State that day. All fraternities will hold open house, and there will be a smoker for all Ohio State, Western Conference, and Pitt alumni in the main dining room of the Schenley Hotel the evening before the game.

The great Ohio State band, 150 pieces strong, will follow the team to Pittsburgh and will parade in the Smoky City before the game.

Northwestern and Illinois staged a bitter battle before a homecoming crowd in Memorial Stadium, at Champaign, Ill. Both elevens were scoreless in the opening period, but the Wildcats unleashed a scoring attack in the second that netted a touchdown, when "Ollie" Olson fired a pass to Manske, who grabbed the ball across the line and grounded it. "Pug" Rentner, of the Wildcats, is shown carrying the ball during one of the exciting moments in the first quarter.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Northwestern will be equipped with a lot of faith and hope when it meets Purdue at Evanston Saturday, but there will be no charity.

At least there will be no voluntary charity, for it was a charity game last season that did Northwestern out of an undisputed Big Ten football title. And Purdue happened to be the team that did the Wildcats out of it. Coach Dick Hanley yesterday told his squad that they had dispensed all the charity they could afford in the Michigan game, when fumbles aided the Wolverines to victory. This week the Wildcats will be out to get a little something for themselves.

Michigan, the big favorite for the title, has troubles of its own. Two extremely useful halfbacks, Stanley Fay, and Jack Heston, suffered serious injuries in the Ohio State battle and will be out of business for a long time. Coach Happy Kipke has plenty of backs, but must do some juggling to locate the most effective combination in time for the Illinois game this week.

Indiana is a source of downright worry to Chicago. The Maroon offense was erratic last week and the Hoosiers showed enough to make the favorites for Saturday's decision. Minnesota and Iowa are experimenting with lineup changes for Saturday and Wisconsin is looking past this week's game with Coe at the Ohio State battle a week hence.

Ohio, battered in the Michigan defeat may face Pittsburgh without Quarterback Carl Cramer, whose knee injury is bothering him again.

Gulliland of Cincinnati went into a tie with Wright of Wittenberg for top scoring honors in the state. The leaders:

In non-conference games Saturday, Oberlin meets Western Reserve; Defiance plays Bowling Green and Cedarville clashes with Wilmington.

The largest crowd in Otterbein history saw its favorite drop its first Ohio conference game in three starts this season. Ohio Northern, by virtue of a 60 yard run by Uhl and a place kick by Porosky, won 9-0.

Kent lost its third consecutive game when Baldwin Wallace rolled up 21 points; Kenyon took advantage of a capital fumble for a 7-0 victory, while a 21-yard place kick by Rex, allowed Defiance to down Wilmington, 3 to 0. A safety in the last quarter gave Rochester a 2-0 victory over Oberlin and Western Reserve triumphed over Mt. Union 26-2 in other games.

The University of Cincinnati continued its winning way when it stopped South Dakota State, 7 to 0, Saturday night before a large crowd. Akron showed surprising defensive power by warding off three serious scoring threats by Wooster and holding the Scotts to a scoreless tie.

Northwestern, Purdue Clash In Grudge Contest Saturday

250 OHIO MINE WORKERS QUIT

Protest Refusal of Company to Re-employ Old Strikers

(By Associated Press)
ATHENS, O., Oct. 18.—Two hundred and fifty miners employed at the No. 267 mine of the Ohio Coalieries company at Hunterton, went on strike again today.
The men quit in protest against what they termed the refusal of officials of the company to re-employ old men who went on strike last February.

Scene of Disorders
The mine was the scene of numerous disturbances last month, following the signing of Governor White's ten point plan to end the seven month old strike in the Hocking valley.

All mines in Athens county, with the exception of three, one of which was No. 267, accepted the agreement providing for a day wage of $3.28 for laborers and 38 cents a ton for loaders and re-employment of old employees.
Alleged threats against the mine which was employing workers brought in from other fields led to the establishment of a mine guard. The guards were armed with high powered rifles.

Early on the morning of September 26, numerous shots were fired from the direction of the mine. Many shots were fired into the home of Clarence Banfield, 19, Banfield, who had never been employed on mine property, was shot and wounded fatally as he stood with his mother in the kitchen of their home.

Two Indicted

As the result of his death two mine guards—Kenneth Bartrug, of Shadyside, and Edward Bass, of Canton—were indicted for manslaughter by the Athens county grand jury. Both pleaded not guilty and were held for trial.
Officials of the United Mine Workers union and national guard observers were at the mine this morning as the miners reported for work. The miners, their lamps lighted, and their luncheon buckets in hand, met at the mouth of the sloping shaft and voted to discontinue work until the company agreed to take back the old men.
